

FIVE-DAY LAW AGTAR BY HER PARENTS' SHWARTS TELPER

WEED UP IS DEEP UP BY DELAY

Vermont Man and Wife Secured Passage of Act Several Years Ago

The five-day law in Vermont was passed largely through the efforts of Willis G. Belknap and his wife, of Bellows Falls.

The five-day law in Massachusetts blighted the romance of their daughter, Caroline.

The Belknaps fought for years for the look-before-you-leap marriage regulation in their native State, because they saw hundreds of couples every year come to their home town for a hasty wedding, only too often to be regretted later. But they little thought that the same regulation would prevent their daughter from marrying a man who, though as fastidious to them as her sweetest through thick and thin.

GAVE UP RICH SUITORS.

James W. Ryan, the youth in this case, captivated Miss Belknap when he went to work in a Bellows Falls mill. She is a college graduate and has remarkable talent in music. Ryan was then using an assumed name.

Many youths, highly educated and well-to-do, had been wooing her until the mill hand entered the lists. Her parents tried to dissuade him in vain. When Ryan left, she followed and both located in Boston.

ADMIT FALSE NAME.

The couple applied for a marriage license in Boston last Spring. Ryan was then a steward's assistant at a hotel and because of lack of money tried to postpone a marriage, he says. The girl insisted and Ryan signed the false name he was using, Theodore Bradford.

After leaving City Hall, Ryan says he confessed to his bride, who was waiting under false colors. She forgave him, but the wedding was put off. Caroline returned home.

A short time ago Ryan received a letter from Caroline that her parents were going away and that she was on her way to Boston. They applied for a license, and then Assistant Registrar Joseph Cahalan grew suspicious about her previous request for a previous license to marry "Bradford."

Cahalan's letter to the girl's parents, asking for their views, arrived just after the father, a newspaper publisher, printed in his own paper the story of his daughter's marriage to "Bradford." The next morning, when the father, who took their daughter with them to the wedding, returned, he found the marriage was annulled.

SEC. WALLACE'S DEATH NEAR, DOCTOR SAYS

Washington, Oct. 25.—Physician attending Secretary Henry C. Wallace of the Agriculture Department, who is lying in bed at a hospital here, said today that the Secretary's condition "found hardly" more unfavorable for recovery. SAVAGES AND A REAL ONE Above is a real savage from New Guinea, as contrasted with a group of typical Boston girls. George Lacselle, the author, says there isn't such a difference. A number of people, however, differ with him.

Dress of Modern Woman Defended and Victorian Styles Condemned as Heavy and Cumbersome.

Does the average modern woman resemble a savage? That is what George Lacselle, author, has decided, according to recent fashion dispatches from Paris. That lady's short skirt, her vovs, is little better than the loin cloth of her savage sisters.

STORE CHAT

To promote a better understanding between our customers and ourselves.

—keep the home stacks smoking!

LETTER to Store Chat Editor from a manufacturer in Ohio inspired the above heading used in our advertisement last week. Commenting on our made in U. S. A. store chat, he says:

"We used to sing, 'Keep the Home Fires Burning.' This fortunately now is no longer necessary, but it is important that we adopt another slogan, 'Keep the Smoke Stacks Burning,' and there is no better way to accomplish this than when making purchases to confine ourselves strictly to American Made Products."

If the American shopping public will keep this slogan in mind when comparing the merits of foreign and domestic merchandise, prosperity will redound to every citizen.

—bringing home the bacon!

HERE is one department in the Gilchrist Company that undeniably "delivers the goods."

Besides the 1500 packages on an ordinary day (and as many as 3000 in three days of record business), the Gilchrist Delivery department offers several special services.

One is the careful verification of addresses and the re-pressing of any garments before re-delivering after locating the address. Such goods are sent by messenger if the regular delivery has left the store.

An emergency service is maintained whereby any member of the delivery staff is available on Sundays, holidays, or during the night. This has been of innumerable help to customers at times of death, sudden illness and similar crises.

—nowadays!

WRITE your suggestions for improving our service to Store Chat Editor.

DAVIS CLOSE TO LA FOLLETTE IN POLL

Climbs to Within 169 Votes of Progressive in Bay State

John W. Davis has pushed up as close to Robert M. La Follette, in the fight for second place in Massachusetts, that the "Third Party" Party leader can feel the breath of his rival on the back of his neck. Dividing 13,275 votes between them, they are only 169 votes apart.

If the anti-Coolidge vote in this State could be combined in the ratio that would be beaten by 1,233 votes, in a total of 25,511.

As the 29th day of this carefully lead straw vote, the figures were:

Last Night

By THIS LISTENER

Any comments I could make on receiving conditions last night would be incomplete unless I mentioned the incessant radio interference caused on WIER's wave by WIP, the United Fruit Company's station on State Street. This was undoubtedly a harmonic of a higher wave which was coming in on WIER's 362 meter channel.

This type of interference, it would seem, has gone far enough to warrant an answer to the question "Can it be eliminated." The fans have been very patient to date, but there is a limit to everything. During the early part of the evening, considerable cable came in from the Canadian Navy Yard. This gave me trouble even on a superheterodyne receiver.

The U. S. Navy got publicity last night to fill all the resulting offices for some time to come. Both local stations, WNAC and WERI had Navy programs on, and they were excellent in every way.

The thing that got me was to hear How's More Potent of the U. S. S. Utah pipe all hands on deck to let go the anchor. The Boston demonstrated amount of their calls accompanied with the old fashioned Boston's whistle, and they must have made any old Navy man who happened to be listening in at all up and take notice.

The Wardroom Officers' Orchestra, who played on WNAC's Navy Night program, proved themselves very expert at their allocation. If the announcement had not been that they were Navy officers one might easily have mistaken them for professional musicians. It would appear to me an ex-aggeration that it wouldn't be at all unpleasant to have a battle on the same ship with such masterly inclined officers.

1924 is an out-of-the-ordinary presidential year! It is a year that may go down in the nation's records as one of the most unusual political years in the history of the United States. While primarily it will be credited with marking the birth of a new party—what is yet to come is likely to provide the real epoch making features. All because La Follette tossed his hat in the arena as a presidential candidate. The outcome of the race is of surpassing interest.

To provide a barometer that will indicate the probable outcome, the great chain of Hearst newspapers located in strategic spots over the country is conducting a straw vote that will cover every State in the Union. Trained reporters and political writers have been sent out by the various units to supervise gathering of votes. And in addition to the daily result of the poll—the tabulations will be enhanced with commentary by leading citizens and political leaders in the key centers of the States covered by each man.

This is without question the most gigantic poll ever attempted and is made possible only through the close knit organization of Hearst newspapers. To follow the result of this mighty straw ballot will be almost like watching the election returns in November.

WATCHING a group of European natives prepare dinner is always an interesting sight. Their etiquette is unknown among the happy and contented people of America, and it is the one big difference between them and us.

ARE you sure that you always see the objects that are before you? When you do see them are you sure that you discern all of their qualities as to shape, texture, color and consistency?
